SNCA Lobbies to Save Pool Funds

The City of Reno recently considered cutting community pool operational hours due to the tough choices being made in light of City budget cuts. Sierra Nevada Community Aquatics (SNCA), among other concerned users, lobbied against the proposed cuts to the area of aquatics. Thanks in part to these efforts, the City was able to come up with a resolution to keep our public pools open during their regularly scheduled days and hours of operation.

"After listening to public comment and hearing presentations... the Reno City Council adopted the fiscal year 2010-2011 budget. Council made changes to the proposed budget to reinstate funding for... several community pools... and other small programs based on citizen feedback."

"The City of Reno's two seasonal outdoor pools will be open for the public to enjoy this summer. Details:

Idlewild Pool – Opens Saturday, May 29th and scheduled to be open through the Dog Daze event on Sunday, September 12th. Over Memorial Day weekend (May 29-31) lap swim is available from 12 - 1 p.m. and public swim is available from 1-4 p.m. Regular daily pool operations begin Tuesday, June 1.

Traner Pool – Traner Pool will not be open over Memorial Day weekend. The pool opens Friday, June 11th through Sunday, August 1st. Public swim will be available from 1 - 4 p.m. daily.

The indoor Northwest Pool and Evelyn Mount Northeast Community Center pool will also be open and continue to operate as regularly scheduled. Although operations were at risk of being reduced due to the City's budget cuts, the Reno City Council allocated sufficient resources to keep all four pools open as usual. "

Local swimming group looks toward new aquatic center for Reno

A local swimming group is making waves towards a new aquatic center for the city of Reno.

The group Sierra Nevada Community Aquatics has been actively raising money to build new swimming pools in town ever since Moana Pool and its 17 lanes were closed down two-and-a-half years ago. Right now, Reno has only 12 indoor swimming lanes, and the group says there just isn't enough space to handle the growing demand from different swimming groups.

Master Swimmer Chip Hobson says, "all the groups have been impacted by squeezing more and more people into smaller spaces."

The group hopes to start construction on a new aquatic center with three pools by next fall.

"It'll probably take a couple of years to build, but I'm not leaving until we have something built, because if we don't do it, who is?" said group President Mike Ginsburg.

Sierra Nevada Community Aquatics continues to try and raise the estimated $10 million to build the facility.

On June 5 they are holding their major fundraiser, "An Evening With the Olympians." The event will include swimming clinics, and a chance to meet Olympic swimmers Rowdy Gaines, Cullen Jones and Jason Lezak.
